

After a Fire: A Guide to Fire Recovery

This Guide to Fire Recovery is distributed by the City of Plymouth and the Plymouth Public Safety Department. It is to be used as a reference by residents as they begin to rebuild after a fire.

In providing this handbook, we make no endorsements, nor do we recommend any specific business professionals. Rather, we encourage residents to consult the advice and expertise of the many professionals who can assist them during the various stages of recovery.

What to Expect

Do not go into a fire-damaged structure unless you have been advised by the Plymouth Fire Department that it is safe to do so.

There are three main sources of damage in a house fire: flames/heat, smoke, and water. Each of these or their combination can damage virtually everything in your home. It is important to understand the risk to your safety and health even after the fire is out. The soot and dirty water left behind may contain things that could make you sick. Be very careful if you go into your home and if you touch any fire-damaged items.

When declared safe, or if escorted by the Fire Department, remove valuables remaining in the building if you plan to leave the site of the fire, including the following:

- Identification.
- Vital medications. If medication was exposed to heat, smoke or water, it should be replaced.
- Eyeglasses, hearing aids, prosthetic devices and other personal aids.
- Valuables and documents.

Take care of yourself and your family. You have a big job ahead of you. Don't try to do it alone. There are many organizations that can help.

Contact your insurance company immediately and ask them what to do first. They can recommend companies that specialize in cleaning and restoring items after a fire. Your insurance company can also recommend a company to board up your home, if needed. Be sure to get a cost estimate in writing and to know who is paying for it – you or your insurance company.

If you are not insured, contact your local American Red Cross or the Salvation Army. Aid is given without regard to income.

Keep all receipts of any money you spend on your recovery. You may be entitled to an income tax return deduction.

Contact local disaster relief services whether you are insured or not. The American Red Cross or Salvation Army can help arrange temporary housing, food, eyeglasses, medication, and other essentials destroyed by the fire. Emergency relief is given regardless of income.

Remove all pets to a cleaner and safer environment. Try to leave pets with a family member, friend, or veterinarian until you are settled.

Contact the police department. They can be a resource to assist you in providing appropriate security for your property.

Notify the following people of your situation:

- Family and friends

- Your employer
- Landlord or mortgage company
- Your children's school
- The post office - Mail can be held or forwarded, depending on the length of your relocation
